

QUARTERLY REPORT

January - March 1993

Efforts to investigate the Roswell UFO crash case continued during the first quarter of 1993. The Fund received -- and eventually approved -- a proposal by Karl Pflock, a former deputy assistant secretary of defense and currently a full-time researcher/writer, to conduct further research into the case. The grant will support general investigation costs and a field investigation trip to New Mexico to interview additional witnesses and to obtain documentary evidence.

During this period, the Fund also approved a proposal to support research expenses of Leonard Stringfield into reported UFO crash/retrieval cases. The amount of support will be up to $1,200 in 1993.

On February 6, the Fund sponsored the first of what may be a series of conferences on the UFO abduction phenomenon. Fifty-five persons attended the invitation-only suburban Washington, DC, conference, including abduction researcher Budd Hopkins and 20 "experiencers" -- a dozen of whom participated in a lengthy panel discussion on the phenomenon. The conference was coordinated by board member Richard Hall, who has been conducting a local abduction investigation effort. (Hall's report on the five-year investigation, Testing Reality: A Research Guide for the UFO Abduction Experience, is now available from the Fund. See the enclosed Reply Form for details.)

Also during this period, the Executive Committee approved a proposal submitted by John Kasher, Ph.D., professor of physics and astronomy at the University of Nebraska at Omaha, to analyze a videotape shot on board the space shuttle Discovery in October 1991, which he believes shows truly anomalous objects instead of ice particles (as maintained by NASA). Dr. Kasher proposes to use two graduate students and a $17,000 work station to conduct the analysis. The committee agreed that the proposal was a worthwhile project and voted unanimously in favor of providing Dr. Kasher with up to $400.

A panel consisting of board members Don Berliner (an aviation and science writer), Richard Hall (abstractor/editor), and Fred Whiting (former broadcast journalist) selected winners of the 1992 Donald Keyhoe Journalism Award competition, which is sponsored by the Fund. The winners were:

- First Place: Christopher Evans of the Cleveland Plain Dealer for his article describing a U.S. Coast Guard investigation into the March 4, 1988, landing of an unidentified flying object on a frozen Lake Erie, near Fairport, OH. Evans received a $500 cash prize.
- Second Place: Annette Gillespie, staff writer of the Bradenton, FL, Herald, who wrote about the UFO abduction phenomenon, with four articles featuring local abduction witnesses who described their experiences. Gillespie received a $250 award for her entry.

■ Third Place: Dawn Shurmaitis, a reporter for The Times Leader of Wilkes-Barre, PA, for a detailed examination of UFO activity and interest in the subject throughout the state. Shurmaitis received a $100 prize.

■ Honorable Mention: Robin Hart, Living Section Editor of the Foothill Leader in Glendale, CA, for an article about a UFO "abductees" support group; and Laura Lee Janssen, reporter for the Williamsport, PA Sun-Gazette, for an article on a local UFO sighting report.

Do you support the need for quality reporting into the UFO phenomenon? Then we need your support for the 1993 Donald Keyhoe Journalism Award. We must raise at least $2,000 to administer the award competition for 1993. Copies of the 1992 award winners will be sent to anyone who donates at least $25.

Unless you have made a contribution to the Fund since January 1993, this may be the last issue of the Quarterly Report you will receive. Due to the increasing costs of postage and printing, we simply can't afford to send the Quarterly Report to anyone but current donors. Please enclose a contribution of at least $10 to ensure that you will receive our Quarterly Report through 1993.
